Raw Lizard Eaten By Andean Mountaineers Believed To Be Cure For Stomach Trouble (Copyright, 1914, by Frank G. Carpenter.)

Frank G. Carpenter

Strange Sights and Queer Customs Are Encountered on the Roof of the Hemisphere; Lakes Which Rival Those of Switzerland.

con steamer had to tack this way, and that to get for many the bitchest of the Hinnaleavas plant to get for and went through any the property of the property

I tried to make my way through the woods I sank in an though I were of one of the bogs of old Irdand. It aim there every few days. Indeed, I am told that it rains ill months every year.

Basiful Lake On Western Slopes. The western slopes in southern Chile have bodies of fresh water that will compare in benuty with the lakes of the Alps. Lake Nahuel Huapl, which it about $550 feet high, is like a Norweglan fiord, with waterfalls flowing down the steep walls of the hard nicher beautiful sheek Sement State of the Alps. Lake Nahuel Huapl, which it lies. Lake Sement State of the Mark which I lies, a lake Sement State of the Mark which I lies, a lake Sement State of the Mark which I lies, a lake Sement State of the Mark which I lies, a lake Sement State of the Saturation of the Sat into lumps.

Mirages on the Lakes.

into lumps.

Mirages on the Lakes.
On other lakes in the neighborhood of that desert region I saw mirages such as rou find in the deserts of Sahara and Libya, and these bodles of salt water seemed to have green islands and ships floating on them, while flamas and alpacas and indians walked through the air.

Lake Titicaca and its little sister.

Lake Poopo, are both more or less alkaline. You can drink the Titicaca water, but it instes bitter, and the water of Lake Desaguadero is still worse. The boraz lake is more bitter than the Dead Sea and the Desaguadero river water tastes very much like that of the Jordan.

Titicacs the Nest Wanderful Lake,

(Copyrighted, 1914, by Frank G. Carpénter.)

OS ANDES, Chile, Dee, 25.—1 am high up on the chilean side of the Andes, rendy to cross over the mountains from the Pacific to the Atlantic slope of the continent. I am now on the roof of the continent. I am now on the roof of the continent right in the shadow of Mugni Aconcagua and within plain sightly the highest peak of the north this mightly range extends as far as the distance from Boston to San Francisco. It rises and fine and whose width is greater in must places than the distance from Boston to San Francisco. It rises and fine and whose width is greater in must places than the distance from Boston to San Francisco. It rises and fine and whose width is greater in many lowes the base of the space of the continent right in the distance of the water as though they were helicons or balls and not the outcroppings of the highest chain of our hemispines that unbold plateaus as great in area as some of our largest states, and at the far north there are three franges, from one of which branches off the spur which drops down into the Culebra cut at the Ishimuro of Panama.

The canges, from one of which branches off the spur which drops down into the Culebra cut at the Ishimuro of Panama.

The canges, from one of which branches off the spur which drops down into the Culebra cut at the Ishimuro of Panama.

The canges, from one of which branches off the spur which drops down into the Culebra cut at the Ishimuro of Panama.

The canges, from one of which branches off the spur which drops down into the Culebra cut at the Ishimuro of Panama.

The canges, from one of which branches off the spur which drops down into the Culebra cut at the Ishimuro of Panama.

The canges, from one of which branches of the spur which drops down into the Culebra cut at the Ishimuro of Pert and Fuel Culebra cut at the Ishimuro of Pert and Fuel Culebra cut at the Ishimuro of Pert and Fuel Culebra cut at the Ishimuro of Pert and Fuel Culebra cut at the Ishimuro of Pert and Fuel Culebra cut at the Ish in most of the bodies of water which he between the two great Anden ranges.

Mountain 22,000 Feet High.

Mount Aconcagua is about 22,000 feet high and it kisses the sky far above any other point on our hemisphere. Mount Megcederio in Argentina is only 700 feet lower, and Tupungate and Sorath The same is true of Illimani, which, like Sorata, looks down on Lake Titicacs, and Chimboraga in Ecuador is yery near the same height. The avery near the same height his grange of the Andes throughout is agr range of the Andes throughout is more than 13,000 feet high. It is the highest range on earth, with the exception of the Himalayas, which are about 5000 feet higher.

We are now sending wireless messages right over the Andes. Peru has a wireless statiou on one of her foot-hills which is farther below the tops of the mountains than the height of Pikes Peak. Nevertheless, they have sent messages right over the range and have had them received by wireless statious in Ele de Janetro, notwiths standing the whole continent lies between. Rio de Janetro is on the level of the sea. Those messages climbed up over 15,000 feet and then slid down to sea level, traveling a distance longer than from Boston to the Great Salt Lake. The highest of the Himalayas is Mount Everest. It measures 23,000 feet and then slid down to sea level, traveling a distance longer than from Boston to the Great Salt Lake. The highest of the Himalayas is Mount Everest. It measures 23,000 feet and then slid down to sea level, traveling a distance longer than from Boston to the Great Salt Lake. The highest of the Himalayas is Mount Everest. It measures 23,000 feet and then slid down to sea level, traveling a distance longer than from Boston to the great Salt Lake. The highest of the Himalayas is Mount Everest. It measures 23,000 feet and the slid down to see the season the early where the sound the wife of an American member of the high Andes is interesting and the

All Capped With Perpetual Snow.

All of these big South American mountains are capped with perpetual anow. Even those of Ecuador, which Perpetual Youth from Lisard.

Aymara believe that the flesh and blood of a certain lizard will give one perpetual youth. It will cure all sorts of diseases and even mend broken bones. As the story goes, the indian kills the lizard and wraps it round the fracture and the break becomes well. It is also good for stomach trouble and the wife of an American miner tens me how she was cured by using it. The lizards came from an old indian, who prescribed the raw flesh chopped up with the blood in it. This was to be drink with the addition of a little chicha, the common beer of the country. Chicha is the common beer of the

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright 1914, International News Service

the moon for any far away place where she won't get herself scorched; and with a long-handled feather from the vanity-bird and a perfectly innocent face tickles the son of Venus under the ribs and the sensitive chin until he

At first he langhs—oh, very hard (he doesn't know any better and he can't surely in the opposite direction as if a red indian with a yellow streak across help himself anyway)—but he winds up drowned in tears and rage. And at first the man on shother star—for she won't let him get too close (so far and no NELL BRINKLEY.

tasted her sandwich with not such a feeling of distaste as she had expected. "Not so bad, eh? Have some coffee" "No, Warren, I don't want any to-

"I'm afraid my headache will come back, dear, and if it does I won't sleep at all."

at all."

Warren was silent, although Helen was sure he was thinking how much she gave in to herself. She knew she did; she wished with all her heart that she was more self-reliant, more clever and subtle about hiding her feelings. But she was just as dependent as any woman could be, and men get tired of a woman like that for a regular diet.

Warren was sitting in the one confortable chair the room afforded winoking his bedtime eigar. Between puffs, fortable chair the room afforded wnoking his bedtime eigar. Between puffs, he regarded Helen as she sat curled up on the bed against the pillows in her prettiest negligee watching him. She wendered what his would do if she should suddenly surprise him by thinking his thoughts out loud for him.

"You'd feel better in bed," he remarked finally. "How's the headache now."

marked finally. "How's the headache now" "Much better, dear. I feel so much better than I did. What were you thinking about just then?" "I was thinking how selfish I was to keep you up like this when you are all tired out. You're a little brick most of the time, Helen, and don't you think I don't appreciate it."

THE FICKLE PUBLIC

will forget you if you drop out of the limelight for a moment. You can't afford to rest, when it comes to advertising. Systematic advertising, even in the smallest way, is a constant re-Keeps You In the Limelight. Rendy Reference Directory, Phone 453, EFINITION: The flirt, in common language, is the woman who sits near, farther) -he laughs, too, and believes in his heart that she's just a merry soul.

The "genus homo" is warmed that when he gets out his spyglass and lights on a woman with a feather and a "come hither!—go away!" look and a baby face, throw down everything that will count for weight in a race and vanish as Warren Invites Helen to Lunch.

"Nonzense, I'm not going to eat all alone; you come along with me and you'll have an appetite before you know it."

know it."

Helen would have preferred going to ber room, and was surprised that Warren insisted suppon her going into the dining room. Ever since last summer at the shore when she had fainted in the water, he had never insisted upon her doing anything when she had one of her peculiar headnches. True, she had never had so bad a one as she had had that day, but then she had never done anything to aggravate even the slightest pain, for fear of another bad spell.

than the Dead Sea and the Desaguadero river water tastes very much like that of the Jordan.
They had been settled at a little table along the wall, and Helen looked around again at the decorations. She had thought the room a little garish to be beautiful, and yet it was effectstraight up in the air above the sea have it to draw the blood away from head."

"But I won't sleep, dear."

"You won't sleep anyway if you have a headache, so you're more likely to if you drink the coffee than if you don't."

Helen gave in and took the cup from Warren. It was sweetened to suit her and she began to sip it obediently and to her surprise felt a little better. By the time she had finished her cup and most of her sandwich and they were ready to go, her headache was almost gone, although it gave a warning throb when she rose to go upstairs.

Warren got the key, and they want up in the elevator. In their room Helan began to get undressed as quickly as she could. If she could get into bed before her head started to throb she might ward off a bad night.

"Well, you are in a hurry," Warren remarked.

"Tm afraid my headache will come

"Now how do you feel?" said Warren miling genially across the table. Headnche better? That's good, Hav-ng a good time?"

Helen forced herself to act as though the felt better, "Just fine, dear, I'm she felt better. "Just fine, dear. I'm so glad you wanted me this time."
"Of course I wanted you. Men don't like strange towns any better than women do, I can tell you that. This will make a fine ending to our little

"The you think I'll have time to look around the stores Monday before we go?" Helen never liked to miss out on the stores where possible shopping might be done for less money.

"Sure, we're not going till after linch; you can have all morning if you like."

The things came and really looked sppetizing. Warren dipped into his

Ella Wheeler Wilcox on

Reincarnation and the Tragedies of Human Life

Nothing Is Lost: Nothing Is Wasted in This World-Whatever Effort We Make in This Life to Grow and Enlarge Our Horizon Will Take Effect in the Life To Be.

NLY belief in the law of reincarnation can make one resigned to the tragedies of human life.

The tragedies of human life are is one of the lesser tragedies—a tragedy nevertheless: A dull is the finds of poor parents, had to end thempt at education when she was a greating for better things, for more wiedge, for higher associations ried at 23, the longing for a good a and greater advantages was in a sure gratified. Eur new, at 40, the un's heart is still craving for more wiedge, for the power of higher department. But she finds her brain as limited, her memory poor. She is letters and enjoys them, but is de to recall it afterward; she affect of the power of higher department. But she finds her brain as leverything worth while, but is de to recall it afterward; she affect of the power of higher department of relate to any one an hour afterity what she has heard street of the same papels that would be far happier had she been satisfied with the commoner and less intellectual side of life. She is like one whose ambition has led him to climb to height where he is incapable of the him to climb to height where he is incapable of the sure plants that thrive in sandy without conversational powers would do well to realize the groat need in the world of good listeners. It would be far happier had she been satisfied with the commoner and less intellectual side of life. She is like one whose ambition has led him to climb to height when the him to climb to height when the commoner and less intellectual side of life. She is like one whose ambition has led him to climb to height when the commoner and less intellectual side of life. She is like one whose ambition has led him to climb to height while, but is done to realize the two of the him to climb to height when the commoner and less intellectual side of life. She is like one whose ambition has led him to climb to height when the commoner and less intellectual side of life. She is like one whose ambition has led him to climb to height which the commoner and less intellectual may seem to be wasted here, they are shaping results in the life which follows directly after this; and they are making environment for the next incarnation. Loneir heart, and longing mind, all your dreams shall yet come true. He satisfied to trust and walt while you listen. rou listen. (Copyright, 1914, by Star company.)

East Indian Troops Too Fastidious in Eating and Cause Trouble in Hospital

London, Eng., Dec. 29 .- The East Indian troops are giving no end of trouble because of their fastidiousness in eating. In the Notley hospital, near Southampton, Hindus and Mohamme-

NIX belief in the law of reincarting and the characters of their fastidiousness in the tragedies of human life.

Here is one of the lesser tragedies by et a tragedy nevertheless. A duit child, born of poor parents, had to see the control of poor parents, had to may of interesting them. She had the child, born of poor parents, had to may of interesting them. She had the child, born of poor parents, had to may of interesting them. She had the property of the child the commoner and less incompletely of the property of the commoner and less incompletely of the property of the commoner and less incompletely of the property of the commoner and less incompletely of the property of the commoner and less incompletely of the property of the commoner and less incompletely of the property of the commoner and less incompletely of the property of the commoner and less incompletely of the property of the property of the commoner and less incompletely of the property of the commoner and less incomplete of the property of the commoner and less incompletely of the property of the commoner and less incomplete of the property of the commoner and less incomplete of the property of the commoner and less incomplete of the property of the commoner and less incomplete of the property of the commoner and less incomplete of the property of the commoner and less incomplete of the property of the commoner and less incomplete of the property of the commoner and less incomplete of the property of the commoner and less incomplete of the property of the commoner and less incomplete of the property of the commoner and less incomplete of the property of the commoner and less incomplete of the property of the commoner and less incomplete of the property of the commoner and less incomplete of the property of the commoner and less incomplete of the property of